

Run Across Wisconsin

Marathon runner Bruce Johnson came through southern Sawyer County last week completing 120 of the 250 miles he is running to meet his goal of crossing the entire state.

Johnson, a roofing contractor from Illinois, has run a marathon a year for over seventeen years. This summer he decided to try something different and chose crossing Wisconsin. He started at the state line on Hwy. 70 and is running approximately 20 miles per day headed to the eastern border of the state.

He is using this as a warm up to try a run across the United States, if he can get sponsors.
